

Peace. I was born Steven Sinclair Murray and now I assume the name Shaheed Rabb Ali. I am serving a 35 years to life sentence for murder in the 2nd degree along with two attempted murders that are also A felonies. My pride and hurt has took me through so many loops that I have already felt 100% hopeless and helpless after so many times. The karma that landed me in this horrible place still makes me angry all the time the family drama, the mental stability I had and was left alone. All these things brings a realization to mind that I should never forget and that is at your most difficult times you will realize that all you have is you so no matter what happens never stop giving up on you. As a man who truly believes in the most high I tell you Hope is what unfolds my faith because without Hope there's nothing. Since my stay in prison 8 years now to be exact I have witness brothers who have accepted ^{this} as their life and believe that faith will one day set them free. Faith seems hopeless to me and the sad look in the individuals face just says enough for me. As a teen my dad who is now deceased express that I should have hope and I continued to learn that lesson from then on. For years my desire to never let the world beat me down has stuck to me like glue and that's the definition of my hope. My father was some ^{one} I look highly to he was a black belt in karate and also taught it. Now and days I've been feeling like I want to be someone who teaches. I have a keen sense of awareness and have been getting physically intune with myself. At the age of 36 I am now in the best shape of my life. I didn't know the person in the mirror could have a new sense of life and it's a wonderful feeling. IF I can reach anyone at the moment I would tell them don't let prison help you find yourself start now and never push yourself to hard work at your own paste but be consistent trusting that you can become the best you are the keyz to keep pushing forward keep loving yourself and remember that the most high watches those who are weak in heart and those who become faithful in there hope and never stop giving up. You must also remember that the most high is the one who gives you your blessings so never forget who can take them away. Be legit in your way of life instead of making a street corner your dream be more consistent in the positive things you know how to do. Although I have a talent to write music and poetry I still have the knowledge to make sure my wisdom is use wisely. Playing video games and chasing boyz with money is cool I guess but respect yourself enough to become a person someone will listen to. I want to thank S.M.M. for giving me this opportunity to share my thoughts unfortunately I am unable to get any photos of myself out at the moment sorry and last but not least I want to shout out Yolanda Musa keep doing ya thing Girl. I just got a visit from two parole officers from Nyc where I'm from so never stop giving up and never ever forget about the most high!
